

We can help manage how much waste to trash we make by following the three R's-reduce, reuse, and recycle. Following these rules will help us to make less trash. Reuse means to take things you would usually throw away and find ways to use them again. Many people reuse cardboard boxes, plastic bags, grocery bags, newspapers, and glass jars. Recycle means to treat the trash so that we can use it again. Some of the things people recycle are aluminum, glass, paper, and plastic. These things can be used again to make a different product.

The best main idea is-

- We should follow the three R's rule.
- We should try to reduce, reuse, and recycle to manage how much waste and trash we make.
- We should reuse plastic bags.

Paul Bunyan

Paul Bunyan was a gentle giant. He was so big that he could not fit inside most people's houses. He would have to talk with people outside. One day he went to visit some friends outside their house. Then it began to rain. Paul Bunyan pulled the roof off their house. He held the roof over everyone like a huge umbrella.

The best main idea is-

- Paul Bunyan was a friendly giant.
- Paul Bunyan had an umbrella.
- Paul Bunyan had to talk to people outside.

Jim was unable to get to sleep. When he went to bed he cried. Tomorrow is his birthday party and it is going to be ruined. How can we go sledding with no snow? The next morning, when Jim got out of bed and ran to the window, he shouted with glee, "The snow has fallen and we can go sledding!" Jim was happy because now he can have his birthday sledding party.

The best main idea is-

- Jim was unable to get to sleep.
- Jim wanted snow for his birthday sledding party.
- Jim's party was going to be ruined.

Having good manners means being polite and thoughtful to others. Saying a simple please and thank you are examples of good manners. Holding a door open for someone is very polite. Practicing good table manners is being thoughtful. Some good table manners would include placing your napkin on your lap, asking someone to please pass something you would like, and eating neatly. Giving someone a sincere compliment and graciously accepting a compliment by saying thank you are more ways to show good manners. Using good manners is a way to show respect for others and an example of The Golden Rule!

The best main idea is-

- Holding the door open for someone is very polite.
- The Golden Rule is an example of respect.
- Having good manners means being polite and thoughtful to others.

There are three lights on a traffic light. The top light is red and that means stop. The middle light is yellow and that means caution. The bottom light is green and that means go.

The best main idea is-

- The three traffic lights tell you what to do.
- The top light is red.
- The bottom light is green and that means go.

